Reaching out to our neighbor with open hearts;
sharing God's blessings with others.

All Are Welcome!

December 2025 • Vol. 68/No. 11

Advent arrives in a blanket of snow. It's a new year of the Christian calendar with a blank canvas on the landscape. An open slate of opportunities for us all. December enters in as a winter wonderland. The old year lives out its final month, awaiting a brand new start. With Thanksgiving now behind us, we decorate and celebrate for Christmas, beginning the celebration of the birth of the Christ Child, and anticipating a fresh beginning.

Can we feel the magic that is in the air? Can we embrace the spiritual presence that is all about us? Can we move away from whatever gloom that may have us entrapped? Can we move into a feeling of being able to breathe, to be able to let go, to feel light again, to feel calm, to feel excitement, to feel warmth, to feel alive? What burdens lay on our mind? What heaviness is in our heart? What sickness is in our body and mind? What can we do to overcome? How do we become renewed? How do we find firm ground? How do we build back up? How do we step up from the places in life we feel that we are near or at the bottom? How do we work our way to the new norm in which we say, 'Here I am, alive, and full of life'?

Advent brings with it five candles to remember a way to live; five ways to be filled with the Spirit; five ways to anticipate a new beginning; five ways to strategize and work toward; five ways to readjust; and five ways to live anew.

The first four candles are lit the four Sundays before Christmas: Hope, Joy, Peace and Love. The final candle is lit on Christmas Eve and is the Christ Candle.

The first Sunday of Advent begins with Hope. There is hope in the coming of our King—a Savior for all humanity. We have hope in the assurance of our Creator's love, hope in the forgiveness we receive, hope in the gift of faith bestowed upon us, and hope in eternal life. The Christ child to come is the Wonder of wonders. It is with him whom all our hope is placed. And it is in our Lord where our hope comes from.

From Hope we move to Peace. Peace is a state of harmony found in proper balance. However, for humans, peace is difficult to obtain. There is peace within the self and mind, peace with fellow humans, peace with nature, other life on earth, and peace with our Creator. Advent marks a time in the year in which we reflect the peace God has made with us. Through Jesus' life, death and resurrection, our sins and trespasses have been forgiven. We have been made right with God, and in such, have been blessed with peace. If our Creator can extend peace to us, who so often go astray, then we too can learn to extend peace to all life around us. Advent marks a time of the year to forgive, accept differences, understand that we are all connected, and that God calls us to seek harmony in all aspects of our life. It is through peace that we might learn to live as we have been created.

From Peace we move to Joy. What greater way to express the Advent season than with joy? In this time of reflection, we recognize all the wonderful gifts we have received this year and in life from the Lord. With great thanksgiving we are filled with joy. And most of all, there is a joy in the air that only exists in the anticipation and arrival of a new baby. And how much greater the joy when the child to be born is the King of kings!?! Here, the time of the Advent season has reached a joyful state. No longer shall we worry, contemplate, and dread the toils and issues of our life. Joy Sunday marks a time to really begin celebrating if we haven't already, to get ourselves in gear to be festive and merry. If we aren't out of the gloom by this point, we need to really make an effort to let joy enter all of our hearts. It is time to have the mindset to give thanks for what has been given to us and smile for the joy which surrounds us.

From Joy we move to Love. God is love. As there is nothing higher than God, there can be nothing higher than love. The greatest achievement any person can ever reach is to be full of love, to love God back and to love all people and all of creation. Jesus affirmed the Great Commandments: to love God with our entire being and our neighbor as our self. Jesus gave us a new commandment: to love one another. In this season, we are reminded of God's love for us through the birth of Jesus. On Love Sunday, we are behooved to remember the teachings of Jesus and the love which poured from him, and by following Jesus' example, we can seek perfection in love as we strive to love one another.

And finally, on Christmas Eve, we move from Love to the celebration of Christ. On this eve of the birth of the Christ Child, we gather together to celebrate the birth of Jesus, our King and Savior. In God there is no beginning nor end, which is represented by the circle of the Advent wreath. And in the center, we place Christ, who was God incarnate, for it was in Jesus that humans fully came to know and understand the true God. Christ is placed at the center of our lives.

Nothing can ever be more important or take precedence over Jesus Christ. Jesus is the Word of God, who always was and always will be. And through the Word, we are taught about all the great gifts in our world which God has given to us, mainly those of hope, peace, joy and love. Our ability to be the children of God comes from the guiding light of Christ. On Christmas Eve, we light the Christ candle, remembering all we have been given by God, and most of all, of the gift of God through Jesus. Just as the Christ candle completes the lighting of the Advent wreath, so the birth of Jesus fills the needs and voids in our own lives, letting us be whole and allowing us to join together in common love, worship and praising our Creator and performing the works of our Lord. Praise be to God for the birth of our Savior.

We are given these Sundays in Advent as a solid blueprint of readjusting our lives. In the early times of Christianity, Advent was a time spent somber and sober, seeking to reflect, to find humility, to repent and to reconnect to God. It was a time of expectation, a time to anticipate the Second Coming and that at any moment Jesus could come back. It was a time for preparation. It was not a time of celebration. Yet our culture saves that ancient practice only for our Lenten practice. Instead, in the Christmas season, we indulge in celebrating and set our hearts to thinking of others, of gift giving, of reunions, and getting ready of all our festivities. By following these five pillars of Advent, we can actually find a balance in living within both of those traditions. We can still take time to reflect, repent, and prepare ourselves to be solid Christians and fellow humans, while finding true hope, peace, joy and love in our lives.

In our life together, we do not need to go into this season of Advent alone. To be a Christian is to be in community. It is argued that one cannot be a Christian individually, for Christ came to unite us, and we cannot separate ourselves from others and still be true followers of Christ. Instead, it is in the love that we share with one another that we find our true Christianity. Be it with friends, family or strangers, the love that we have between us is the act of us receiving the love of God that we know through Christ, utilizing that love and passing that love on. Love binds us together. Love helps us help one another. Love will get us through this season, onto the path we need to be, and to be able to be the best individuals we can by binding ourselves as a beloved community together.

Merry Christmas,
Mike
